26See, this day I set before you blessing and curse: 27blessing, if you obey the commandments of the LORD your God that I enjoin upon you this day; 28and curse, if you do not obey the commandments of the LORD your God, but turn away from the path that I enjoin upon you this day and follow other gods, whom you have not experienced. 29When the LORD your God brings you into the land that you are about to enter and possess, you shall pronounce the blessing at Mount Gerizim and the curse at Mount Ebal.—30Both are on the other side of the Jor-

ISRAEL’S CHOICE: BLESSING AND CURSE (11:26–30)

26. The Israelites are given the choice between material well-being and misfortune (see Deut. 28).

28. other gods, whom you have not experienced The Lord’s claim on Israel’s loyalty is based on the fact that He alone has acted on Israel’s behalf (see 5:6). Israel has received nothing from other gods.

29. The covenant relationship with God, vital for Israel’s existence in the Promised Land, is to be reaffirmed as soon as the people enter the land, in a public ceremony described in chapter 27. The mountains where the ceremony is to take place face each other south and north of Shechem, respectively. Shechem was located on the eastern approach to modern Nablus.

30. other side of the Jordan West of the Jordan River, across from the side on which Moses is addressing the people.

This parashah emphasizes the concept of a central sanctuary in a place to be designated by God, to serve as the only legitimate site for sacrificial offerings and corporate worship. The Torah seems to fear that if the Israelites take over the holy places where the Canaanites worshiped, some of the residual paganism may cling to those sites and influence Israelite worship.

26. See, this day I set before you blessing and curse We have learned that different people absorb information in different ways—some by seeing, some by hearing, some by touching. Those Israelites who were not persuaded by hearing God’s commandments at Sinai, or by hearing Moses’ exhortations, are asked to see the difference that following God’s ways can make in one’s life.

The distinguishing characteristic of human beings, setting us apart from other animals, is our ability to choose the values by which we live. Other animals are driven by instinct. The Torah repeatedly affirms that humans have the potential to control instinct. At our best, we are greater than the angels, who do not have to overcome temptation and apathy. At our worst, we are less than beasts. Their destructiveness is part of their nature, human cruelty is the result of choice.

27. obey Hebrew: ts'hm’u, which most commonly means “hear” (as “listen” in English can also mean “obey”). The reward of an observant life will be the ability to hear God’s voice among the conflicting messages competing for our attention in a noisy world (S’fat Emet).

28. and curse, if you do not obey Does God curse and afflict the person who leads an immoral life? Or does the individual, through personal behavior, bring curses down on himself or herself and sometimes on others who are closely involved?
These are the laws and rules that you must carefully observe in the land that the LORD, God of your fathers, is giving you to possess, as long as you live on earth.

2 You must destroy all the sites at which the nations you are to dispossess worshiped their gods, whether on lofty mountains and on hills

---

The laws given in Moab constitute the core of Deuteronomy. Moses, keenly aware that the people need to be persuaded to follow the laws, spends as much time exhorting the Israelites to obedience as he does presenting the laws.

---

CHAPTER 12

2. Once again we see the Torah’s profound concern that the adolescent nation Israel might be led astray by the rituals of Canaanite paganism. These commands do not apply to mature Judaism’s relationship to the faiths of our neighbors today.

---

INTRODUCTION AND HEADING TO THE LAWS (11:31–12:1)

31. For you are about to cross Better: “When you cross.” This introduction specifies when the laws are to be put into effect.

---

THE SANCTUARY AND OTHER RELIGIOUS MATTERS (12:2–16:17)

The first section of the laws focuses on the sanctuary and the rites and festivals celebrated within it. It includes other religious matters as well, such as shunning Canaanite religious practices, punishing instigation to worship other gods, and holiness in mourning and in diet.

---

THE PLACE OF WORSHIP (12:2–13:1)

DESTROYING CANAANITE SANCTUARIES (vv. 2–3)

Most of the Canaanite places of worship were open-air sanctuaries (with altars, sacred pillars, sa-- on lofty mountains Pagans worshiped nature as divine. However, even though nature can be beautiful, it is not moral. Falling rocks and disease germs afflict good and bad people alike. The pagans rarely saw beyond the beautiful—but amoral—natural world to recognize the God of righteousness who created it.

---

or under any luxuriant tree. 3 Tear down their altars, smash their pillars, put their sacred posts to the fire, and cut down the images of their gods, obliterating their name from that site. 4 Do not worship the Lord your God in like manner, but look only to the site that the Lord your God will choose amidst all your tribes as His habitation, to establish His name there. There you are to go, and there you are to bring your burnt offerings and other sacrifices, your tithes and contributions, your votive and sacred posts, and images) rather than temple buildings. Those in the countryside outnumbered those in the cities.

2. destroy all the sites This does not refer to the geographic locations but to the altars and other objects used in worship at those sites.

3. obliterating their name Wiping out all reminders of their existence.

from that site The Torah does not require the Israelites to engage in a worldwide campaign against idolatry, but only to eliminate it from the land of Israel where it might influence them. This is consistent with the biblical view that for other nations idolatry is not a sin.

THE SINGLE PLACE OF SACRIFICE (vv. 4–7)
The reason for restricting sacrifice to a single place is not explicitly explained. The Torah appears to view multiple sacrificial sites as inherently pagan. This limitation is unique to Deuteronomy and its most far-reaching law. It affected the religious life of every Israelite, involving the sacrificial system, the celebration of festivals, the economic status of the Levites, and even the judicial system. The only known attempts to enforce such a restriction occurred in the 8th and 7th centuries B.C.E., during the reigns of Kings Hezekiah and Josiah (see 2 Kings 18, 22–23).

4. Israelites must not worship the Lord in the ways that Canaanites worshiped their gods: by sacrificing on hills and under trees, using pillars and idols and sacred posts.

5. the site Not named in the Torah. Eventually Jerusalem was chosen, but according to Jer. 7:12 it was preceded by Shiloh.

God will choose Presumably, the divine choice would be communicated by a prophet. The site where Solomon built the Temple was initially chosen by David for an altar on the instructions of the prophet Gad (see 2 Sam. 24:18).

to establish His name there The idea that God’s name is “established” at the Temple means that He is accessible there in worship, because it is the focus of His attention. By speaking of God’s name as dwelling in the chosen place, Deuteronomy seeks to correct the impression that God dwells there literally. Only His name dwells there, whereas God is in heaven. The doctrine of God’s name dwelling in the Temple is central to Deuteronomy.

6. God, by choosing a single sanctuary, limits to that locale all sacrificial worship. The regular pilgrimage festivals were probably the most convenient occasions for these offerings, but farmers presumably made private pilgrimages at other times as well.

burnt offerings See Lev. 1.

other sacrifices The Hebrew is based on the term zevah, a sacrifice in which most of the meat is eaten by the one who offers it (see v. 27).

tithes Literally, a tenth; gifts or payments amounting to 10 percent of the value of the yield from agricultural products and cattle. They were originally used to support temples and their personnel, but their function changed when the local sanctuaries were abolished (see 14:22–29).

4. Do not worship the Lord . . . in like manner Literally, “you shall not act thus toward the Lord.” Rashi cites a tradition that “thus” refers to words in the previous verse—“obliterate (the) names” of pagan gods. He views this as the source of the custom not to discard a book or paper that bears God’s name. This is why such documents are not discarded but buried or stored in a g’nizah [repository].
contributions Literally, “the contribution of your hands” (t’rumat yedkhem). The word t’rumah refers to something separated (literally, “lifted”) from a larger amount and dedicated either to the sanctuary or to the priest. Here, it most likely refers to first fruits, although the term also refers to tithes, the priest’s share of a sacrificial animal, and the portion of war spoils assigned to the sanctuary.

votive A gift promised to God on condition that He grant a benefaction, such as the birth of a son or the safe return from a journey or a battle.

freewill An offering that the worshiper—usually with no prior obligation or commitment—promised to give as an expression of devotion or gratitude.

firstlings Firstborn male oxen, sheep, and goats, each of which had to be offered to God as a sacrifice (see 15:19–23).

7. together with your households Members of the household are listed in verses 12 and 18. It was common for wives to attend, except in special circumstances, as when they were nursing. This is indicated by the story of Hannah and Peninnah in 1 Samuel 1.

feast Eating the offerings of verse 6 (see vv. 17–18). This is a generalization, because some offerings (e.g., burnt offerings) were not eaten.

happy Literally, “you shall celebrate,” with a sacrificial meal. Although each type of offering has a specific purpose, Deuteronomy emphasizes the overall value of sacrifices in providing occasions for celebrating God’s bounty. They serve to inculcate love and reverence for God (see esp. 14:23). Deuteronomy stresses the effect of offerings on people rather than on God.

WHEN CENTRALIZATION OF SACRIFICE IS TO TAKE EFFECT (vv. 8–12)

This section explains why sacrifice is not yet limited to a single site and indicates when the limitation is to be put into effect.

8. every man as he pleases Literally, “every man [doing] what is right in his own sight.” This implies that at the time of Moses’ address, Israelites were permitted to offer sacrifices wherever they wished. But Lev. 17:1–9 states that a restriction of sacrifice to a single place—the Tent of Meeting—had been commanded earlier, in the wilderness. Modern scholars assume that Deuteronomy was not aware of Lev. 17, which they assign to a different source. 9. The present situation is permitted because the Israelites are not yet settled in the land. Once there, they must possess it securely so that pilgrims may travel safely to the chosen place.

11. choice votive offerings Your votive offerings are to be of the choicest products.
tive offerings that you vow to the Lord. 12 And you shall rejoice before the Lord your God with your sons and daughters and with your male and female slaves, along with the Levite in your settlements, for he has no territorial allotment among you.

13 Take care not to sacrifice your burnt offerings in any place you like, 14 but only in the place that the Lord will choose in one of your tribal territories. There you shall sacrifice your burnt offerings and there you shall observe all that I enjoin upon you. 15 But whenever you desire, you may slaughter and eat meat in any of your settlements, according to the blessing that the Lord your God has granted you. The impure and the pure alike may partake of it, as of the gazelle and the deer. 16 But you must not partake of the blood; you shall pour it out on the ground like water.

17 You may not partake in your settlements of the tithes of your new grain or wine or oil, or along with the Levite Once sacrifice is restricted to a single sanctuary, the Levites living in settlements around the country will lose the income they earned from officiating there. They had no tribal lands from which to earn a living, and the single chosen sanctuary could not possibly support all of them. Hence Deuteronomy urges solicitude for them, and establishes a special tithe for them, along with the poor, every three years (14:28–29). Here, their participation in sacrificial meals somewhat makes up for their former shares of sacrifices and donations.

12. slaves The requirement to involve slaves in religious celebrations, like the requirement that slaves rest on Shabbat (5:14), is part of the Torah’s unique concern for their welfare.

13. burnt offerings Here, refers to all types of offerings.

15. slaughter and eat meat This signals a major change in religious and dietary practice. Previously, only game animals were permitted to be slaughtered outside of the framework of sacrificial offerings. Domestic cattle (oxen, sheep, and goats) could be slaughtered only on altars, as sacrifices, even if the offerer’s purpose was solely to use them for food. Only after the blood was dashed on the altar and certain of the innards burned could the remainder be eaten. This rule was practical as long as it was legitimate to have sanctuaries throughout the land. But the requirement would become nearly impossible to fulfill once a single sanctuary was chosen, because those who lived far from it would be able to eat meat only on the infrequent occasions when they visited there. To avoid this hardship, nonsacrificial slaughter of domestic cattle is to be permitted, and people may eat meat whenever they choose.

according to the blessing . . . granted you That is, as much as you can afford.

The impure and the pure As long as domestic cattle had to be slaughtered sacrificially, people who were ritually impure could eat meat only from nonsacrificial animals, such as gazelle and deer. Once the nonsacrificial slaughter of domestic cattle is permitted, they will be treated like game animals, and the ritually impure may eat their meat as well.

16. you must not partake of the blood The prohibition against eating blood (see v. 23) will remain in effect. When domestic animals are slaughtered only for food, their blood is to be poured on the ground, unlike the blood of sacrifices (v. 27).
of the firstlings of your herds and flocks, or of any of the votive offerings that you vow, or of your freewill offerings, or of your contributions. 18 These you must consume before the Lord your God in the place that the Lord your God will choose—you and your sons and your daughters, your male and female slaves, and the Levite in your settlements—happy before the Lord your God in all your undertakings. 19 Be sure not to neglect the Levite as long as you live in your land.

When the Lord enlarges your territory, as He has promised you, and you say, “I shall eat some meat,” for you have the urge to eat meat, you may eat meat whenever you wish. 21 If the place where the Lord has chosen to establish His name is too far from you, you may slaughter any of the cattle or sheep that the Lord gives you, as I have instructed you; and you may eat

SACRIFICIAL FOOD  (vv. 17–19)

17. Both the act of sacrifice and the eating of the sacrifice are restricted to the chosen place. The new freedom to eat nonsacrificial meat at home will not mean that sacrificial food may be taken home and eaten there after having undergone the sacrificial procedure in the chosen place. The entire household must travel to the chosen place and eat the sacrificial food there, “before the Lord,” to experience the religious influence of the place (see 14:23).

NONSACRIFICAL SLAUGHTER  (vv. 20–25)

20. enlarges your territory  This act will give you the entire Promised Land (see 19:8; Exod. 34:24). Full possession of the land, however, will come gradually (7:22). As long as some of it remains in the hands of the Canaanites, Israelites will lack the security that is a prerequisite for centralization (see v. 10).

as He has promised you  In Exod. 34:24.

21. too far from you  The text does not define what “too far” means and may intend to leave this to the discretion of each individual.

slaughter  Hebrew: zabah. The verb refers to sacrificial slaughter and indicates that nonsacrificial slaughter should follow the same procedure—namely, slitting the animal’s throat. This method facilitates maximal drainage of blood, in keeping with verses 16 and 23–25.

HALAKHAH L’MA’ASEH

12:21. as I have instructed you  From these words, the Sages determined (BT Ḥul. 28a) that the laws of kosher slaughter (sh’ḥitah) of animals for food are rooted in the Torah.
to your heart’s content in your settlements. 22Eat it, however, as the gazelle and the deer are eaten: the impure may eat it together with the pure. 23But make sure that you do not partake of the blood; for the blood is the life, and you must not consume the life with the flesh. 24You must not partake of it; you must pour it out on the ground like water: 25you must not partake of it, in order that it may go well with you and with your descendants to come, for you will be doing what is right in the sight of the LORD.

26But such sacred and votive donations as you may have shall be taken by you to the site that the LORD will choose. 27You shall offer your burnt offerings, both the flesh and the blood, on the altar of the LORD your God; and of your other sacrifices, the blood shall be poured out on the altar of the LORD your God, and you shall eat the flesh.

28Be careful to heed all these commandments that I enjoin upon you; thus it will go well with you and with your descendants after you forever, for you will be doing what is good and right in the sight of the LORD your God.

22. The ritually impure may eat meat from nonsacrificial slaughter; they may even eat from the same bowl as those who are ritually pure. Because the meat is not sacrificial, defilement by contact with impure persons does not disqualify it, and there is no need to avoid sharing meat with them.

23. make sure This exhortation and the reiteration of the blood prohibition in verses 24–25 indicate a concern that people might not be careful to avoid the blood, either because they want to consume it or because of the effort involved in removing it from the meat.

partake . . . consume Literally, in both cases, “eat.” The use of this verb instead of “drink” implies that the text is not dealing with the likelihood that people might drink blood but that they might consume it, in the form of blood pudding or gravy, or simply while eating meat because of laxity in draining the blood. the blood is the life Blood is the life force in living creatures (see Gen. 9:4; Lev. 17:11).

DETAILS ABOUT SACRIFICIAL SLAUGHTER (vv. 26–28)

26. sacred and votive donations Refers to anything sacrificial in character. Votive offerings are singled out because, since they are voluntary, the worshiper might be led to believe that there is greater discretion regarding where they may be presented.

27. The flesh of the burnt offering is consumed entirely by fire. The flesh of the other sacrifices is eaten by the one who offered the sacrifice and by the priests (18:3). In both cases, the blood is poured on the altar.

HALAKHAH L’MA-ASEH
12:23–24. do not partake of the blood These verses restate to the Israelites what God commanded Noah in Gen. 9:4, that meat may be eaten only if its blood is first drained. Cf. Comment to Lev. 11:3 and the essay titled “Dietary Laws” for a summary of the other requirements for kosher meat.
29 When the Lord your God has cut down before you the nations that you are about to enter and dispossess, and you have dispossessed them and settled in their land, beware of being lured into their ways after they have been wiped out before you! Do not inquire about their gods, saying, “How did those nations worship their gods? I too will follow those practices.”

31 You shall not act thus toward the Lord your God, for they perform for their gods every abhorrent act that the Lord detests; they even offer up their sons and daughters in fire to their gods.

Be careful to observe only that which I enjoin upon you: neither add to it nor take away from it.

If there appears among you a prophet or a dream-diviner and he gives you a sign or a por-

SHUNNING CANAANITE RELIGIOUS PRACTICES (12:29–13:1)

31. None of the Canaanite religious practices may be adopted, because many were abominable. They even offer up their sons and daughters

Moses takes it for granted that the people know child sacrifice is wrong. He cites it as an extreme, shocking example of Canaanite abominations.

13:1. The Hebrew text does not begin a new passage here. This verse complements the first part of 12:31, indicating that Israelites may worship God only in the ways He commands, no less and no more. They may not abolish His commandments or add to them. Adopting any of the Canaanites’ abominable practices would lead to both. See Comment to Deut. 4:2.

INSTIGATION TO WORSHIP OTHER GODS (vv. 2–19)

God is Israel’s king; worshipping other gods is high treason. There are parallels to this law in Near Eastern treaties and similar texts. Ancient laws requiring that agitation against the sovereign be reported and punished correspond closely to this chapter.

INSTIGATION BY A PROPHET OR A DREAMER (vv. 2–6)

The law puts a limit on prophecy and miracles by stipulating that the prohibition against worshipping gods is an eternally binding principle. Even prophecies and seemingly miraculous proofs to the contrary are to be disregarded.

2. Prophecy and dreams are two of the regular means by which God communicates with people in the Bible.

prophet Hebrew: navi, which probably means “proclaimer.” Some interpret it as “spokesperson.”

dream-diviner A person—either a prophet or a layperson—who claims to have received a message from God in a dream.

gives you a sign or a portent As Moses did in Exodus, to demonstrate that his message came from God. The signs refer to marvels that could

30. beware of being lured into their ways

The Torah would sharpen the distinction between intellectual study of other faiths and the temptation to incorporate elements of those faiths into our own practice. Every religion has its own “grammar,” its coherent way of expressing its values. We do violence to that coherence when we mix practices of one faith system with those of another.

CHAPTER 13

1. See Comment to 4:2.
tent, saying, “Let us follow and worship another god”—whom you have not experienced—even if the sign or portent that he named to you comes true. Do not heed the words of that prophet or that dream-diviner. For the Lord your God is testing you to see whether you really love the Lord your God with all your heart and soul. Follow none but the Lord your God, and revere none but Him; observe His commandments alone, and heed only His orders; worship none but Him, and hold fast to Him. As for that prophet or dream-diviner, he shall be put to death; for he urged disloyalty to the Lord your God—who freed you from the land of Egypt and who redeemed you from the house of bondage—to make you stray from the path that the Lord your God commanded you to follow. Thus you will sweep out evil from your midst.

have been brought about only by supernatural power (Exod. 4:1–9).

3. What follows is Moses’ pejorative paraphrase of the proposal offered by the dream-diviner or prophet. An instigator would not use vague and disparaging phrases like “another god, whom you have not experienced” but would identify a specific god.

Let us follow Literally, “Let us walk after.” This idiom is frequently used to express loyalty to a king. By paraphrasing the prophet’s invitation as calling for “walking after” a god, Moses indicates that it is tantamount to proposing treason against the Lord.

4. testing you By allowing the sign to come true, Moses does not explain why God would test Israel, but counters the false prophet’s argument that the sign proves his prophecy true.

with all your heart and soul That is, whether your loyalty to Him is undivided.

5. none but the Lord In contrast to what the false prophet urges.

6. urged disloyalty The law refers to a prophet of the Lord who advocates the worship of gods and claims that such worship is compatible with loyalty to Israel’s God. Such a prophet is guilty of false prophecy, a capital crime (see 18:20).

who freed you from the land of Egypt The Lord, unlike false gods “whom you have not experienced” (v. 3), has proven Himself to Israel. This underscores the gravity of the prophet’s sin, because the Lord’s redemption of the Israelites from bondage established their obligation to worship Him alone (see 5:6–7).

to make you stray This is a second reason for executing the instigator. Urging apostasy—the religious equivalent of sedition—is also a capital crime (see v. 11).

Thus you will sweep out evil from your midst This expression, which appears several times at the close of instructions for punishing a criminal, reflects the view that the punishment removes a tangible evil from the community.

INSTIGATION BY A CLOSE RELATIVE OR FRIEND (vv. 7–12)

A secret proposal to worship a god is difficult to resist when it comes from a relative or a dear friend. Because it originates with someone very close, one may be inclined to take no action against the instigator.
7. your brother, your own mother’s son  The most closely related brother, the son of your mother as well as of your father.

   the wife of your bosom  That is, your wife, who lies in your bosom. One would be reluctant to prosecute an instigator toward whom one feels particularly affectionate.

   in secret  Given the stigma and punishment that were to befall those who worshiped gods, it was expected that instigators would make their proposals secretly.

9. do not assent or give heed  Verse 4 states only "do not give heed" to a prophet or dreamer. The additional verb here reflects the fact that family and friends can exert sustained pressure in the service of their cause, and greater effort is required to resist their importuning.

   Show him no pity or compassion  You might be tempted to spare him out of love. But the danger to public welfare posed by these instigators requires the stifling of normal feelings.

   do not shield him  By keeping his proposal secret.

10. take his life  This is not accomplished by summary execution, but only after a thorough investigation, as we see from verses 13–19 and 17:2–7. The person approached by the instigator must report the crime and later take part in the execution (see 17:7).

   the rest of the people  Of his city (see 21:21).

11. Stoning, the most common form of capital punishment in the Bible, normally took place outside the city. The witnesses to the crime cast the first stones, followed by the rest of the people. Punishment by stoning enabled the entire public to participate and thereby express its outrage against the crime and the threat it posed to God's authority and society's welfare.

12. By taking part in the execution, the townspeople will be dissuaded from committing the same crime. News of the execution will have the same effect on the rest of the nation.

REPORTED SUBVERSION OF AN ENTIRE TOWN  (vv. 13–19)

The most serious circumstance is one in which the instigation has apparently succeeded, and an entire town has committed the crime.

13. If you hear it said  The authorities learn of it by rumor—unlike the first two instances, the LORD your God is giving you to dwell in, that some scoundrels from among you have gone and subverted the inhabitants of their town, saying, “Come let us worship other gods”—whom you have not experienced—you shall investigate and inquire and interrogate thoroughly. If it is true, the fact is established—that abhorrent thing was perpetrated in your midst—put the inhabitants of that town to the sword and put its cattle to the sword. Doom it and all that is in it to destruction: gather all its spoil into the open square, and burn the town and all its spoil as a holocaust to the LORD your God. And it shall remain an everlasting ruin, never to be rebuilt. Let nothing that has been doomed stick to your hand, in order that the LORD may turn from His blazing anger and show you compassion, and in His town is to be subjected to the heirem (utter destruction). This heirem is more severe than the one to be applied to the Canaanites (see 7:2, 20:17), whose booty, except in the case of Jericho, is permitted. Shunning the booty expresses utter abhorrence at Israelites who apostatize.

15. investigate . . . inquire . . . interrogate
The use of three verbs here for the investigative process, instead of one verb as elsewhere (17:4, 19:18), and the use of three phrases to confirm the charge, indicate the need for the most careful investigation and absolute certainty in the verdict.

16. Apparently the text deals only with a hypothetical case in which the entire town is guilty.
There is no indication of what is to be done with any innocent inhabitants.

to the sword Individual apostates are executed by stoning (17:5), but it would be impossible to stone large numbers of people, as they would resist. The meaning here is that the town is to be conquered militarily.

Doom it . . . to destruction The apostate

God, the lonely faithful individual would either leave in disgust or remain and become cor-ruped. Later, the Sages deemed it impossible for such a situation actually to occur. They considered it to be a purely hypothetical situation, included here to warn us of the serious consequences of idol worship [BT Sanh. 71a].
14 You are children of the Lord your God. You shall not gash yourselves or shave the front of your heads because of the dead. For you are a people consecrated to the Lord your God: the Lord your God chose you from among all other peoples on earth to be His treasured people.

Scholars think that these acts were believed to have an effect on the ghost of the dead person, either as offerings of blood and hair to strengthen the ghost in the netherworld or to assuage the ghost’s jealousy of the living by showing it how grief-stricken they are. These rites could also be acts of self-punishment expressing feelings of guilt, which are often experienced by survivors after a death.

1. You are children of the Lord your God
Hence, you may not disfigure yourselves during mourning. No reason is given for the connection between being a child of God and disfiguring oneself when mourning. Rashi explains: “Because you are children of the Lord, it is appropriate for you to be comely, not gashed and balded.”

shave the front of your heads
The Hebrew phrase refers to any form of removing hair, cutting and plucking as well as shaving. Gashing the flesh until the blood runs and removing hair are known as mourning rites the world over and were practiced by Israel’s neighbors and by some Israelites.

You shall not gash yourselves
The Sages, basing their comment on a play on words, used this verse to demand that we not bicker among ourselves as a community, dividing into sects [BT Yev. 13b, 14a].

3. Dietary rules are part of Deuteronomy’s emphases on manifesting one’s humanity by controlling instinct and on the Israelites separating themselves from pagans whose land they would shortly be entering.
are the animals that you may eat: the ox, the sheep, and the goat; 5 the deer, the gazelle, the roebuck, the wild goat, the ibex, the antelope, the mountain sheep, 6 and any other animal that has true hoofs which are cleft in two and brings up the cud—such you may eat. 7 But the following, which do bring up the cud or have true hoofs which are cleft through, you may not eat: the camel, the hare, and the daman—for although they bring up the cud, they have no true hoofs—they are impure for you; 8 also the swine—for although it has true hoofs, it does not bring up the cud—is impure for you. You shall not eat of their flesh or touch their carcasses.

9 These you may eat of all that live in water: you may eat anything that has fins and scales. 10 But you may not eat anything that has no fins and scales: it is impure for you.

11 You may eat any pure bird. 12 The following

5. ibex  Or “bison.”

7. Four animals are listed, to illustrate the principle that those that have only one of the required characteristics are forbidden.

camel Only the upper part of the camel’s hoof is split. The bottom is joined.

the hare and the daman Because these animals chew their food for a long time and sometimes move their jaws from side to side, they look as if they were chewing the cud, although they are not ruminants (who chew the cud).

impure That is, ritually impure.

Water Animals (vv. 9–10)

9. fins and scales As in Leviticus, only a general rule is given for distinguishing between permitted and forbidden aquatic animals.

Winged Animals and Other Restrictions (vv. 11–21)

All the winged animals listed here are birds except for the bat, which is a winged rodent. The permitted and the forbidden winged animals are not

8. The Midrash portrays a reclining pig stretching out its hooves and saying “Look, I’m pure,” while concealing the fact that it does not chew the cud; such was the hypocrisy of the Roman Empire, which posed as being dedicated to law and justice while oppressing the peoples it ruled [Lev. R. 13:5].

HALAKHAH L’MA’ASEH

14:6. hoofs . . . cud The flesh only of animals that have split hooves and chew the cud can be kosher. See Comment to Lev. 11:3.

14:9. fins and scales See Comments to Lev. 11:9, 12.

14:11ff. any pure bird The Sages, generalizing from this list of kosher fowl, established four criteria for a kosher fowl, including that it not be a bird of prey (M Hul. 3:6). Later Jewish law determined that only those birds that traditionally have been accepted as kosher may be eaten. These are the birds (and their eggs) considered permissible: chicken, capon, Cornish hen, turkey, domestic duck and goose, house sparrow, pigeon, squab, palm dove, turtledove, partridge, peacock, and—according to some authorities—guinea fowl, quail, and what is today called pheasant.
you may not eat: the eagle, the vulture, and the black vulture; 13 the kite, the falcon, and the buzzard of any variety; 14 every variety of raven; 15 the ostrich, the nighthawk, the sea gull, and the hawk of any variety; 16 the little owl, the great owl, and the white owl; 17 the pelican, the bustard, and the cormorant; 18 the stork, any variety of heron, the hoopoe, and the bat.

19 All winged swarming things are impure for you: they may not be eaten. 20 You may eat only pure winged creatures.

21 You shall not eat anything that has died a natural death; give it to the stranger in your community to eat, or you may sell it to a foreigner. For you are a people consecrated to the Lord your God.

You shall not boil a kid in its mother’s milk.

distinguished by easily observable external characteristics. Hence, no general rule is given for distinguishing among them, but only a list identifying those that are impure.

12. Virtually all the forbidden winged creatures are scavengers or birds of prey. They share four characteristics: they lack a crop (the pouches of the gullet that stores food), they lack an extra toe on the back of the foot, their teeth in their gizzards cannot be peeled off, and they tear their prey. Note that the identification of several of the birds is not certain.

eagle Hebrew: neshar, which can refer also to a griffon vulture.

19. swarming things Hebrew: sharetz, creatures that swarm or crawl—such as insects, rodents, reptiles, and amphibious marine animals.

21. died a natural death It was not torn by another creature.

give it to the stranger . . . sell it to a foreigner
Deuteronomy, unlike Lev. 17:15, does not mandate that “strangers” (i.e., resident aliens) must avoid impurity, because they are not subject to the requirements of holiness that are incumbent on Israelites. Hence they may eat the flesh of animals that die of natural causes. The distinction between “giving” the meat to resident aliens and “selling” it to foreigners reflects the differing economic status of the two classes. Resident aliens were often poor and objects of charity. Nonresident foreigners normally were in the land for purposes of trade and were able to support themselves.

You shall not boil a kid in its mother’s milk
This rule is listed with the food prohibitions because meat cooked this way may not be eaten (see Exod. 23:19, 34:26). Meat boiled in sour milk (leben) was probably regarded as a delicacy, as it is by Arabs. The prohibition is similar to the rule against slaughtering cattle and their young on the same day and the requirement that newborn cattle remain with their mothers at least one week before they are sacrificed, to prevent acts of insensitivity against animals.

PERIODIC DUTIES (14:22–16:17)

TITHES (vv. 22–29)
The farmer must set aside a tithe of his produce each year. Tithing was a well-known practice in

HALAKHAH L’MA-ASEH
14:21. not boil a kid in its mother’s milk See comment on Exod. 23:19.
from the field. 23 You shall consume the tithes of your new grain and wine and oil, and the firstlings of your herds and flocks, in the presence of the Lord your God, in the place where He will choose to establish His name, so that you may learn to revere the Lord your God forever. 24 Should the distance be too great for you, should you be unable to transport them, because the place where the Lord your God has chosen to establish His name is far from you and because the Lord your God has blessed you, 25 you may convert them into money. Wrap up the money and take it with you to the place that the Lord your God has chosen, 26 and spend the money on anything you want—cattle, sheep, wine, or other intoxicant, or anything you may desire. And you shall feast there, in the presence of the ancient world. Because there are inconsistencies among the various tithe laws in the Torah (see Lev. 27:30–33; Num. 18:21–32), modern scholars generally assume that they were not originally parts of a single system but reflect practices in different times or places.

The Annual Tithe (vv. 22–27)

In four years out of seven, the tithe is to be consumed by the farmer and his household during the course of worship at the chosen sanctuary. 22. This verse introduces the first tithe, which is given in years 1, 2, 4, and 5 of the cycle. (Verses 28–29 deal with years 3 and 6. And in year 7, no tithe can be given because there is no harvest; see Exod. 23:10–11, Lev. 25:2–7).

the yield . . . brought in from the field Including wine and oil as well as grains (see v. 23).

23. in the presence of the Lord The text does not say when these offerings are to be brought to the sanctuary. The regular pilgrimage festivals were probably the most convenient occasions, although farmers probably made private pilgrimages at other times, too.

firstlings of your herds and flocks They are mentioned here because, like the tithe, they are brought to the chosen sanctuary by their owners and eaten there. All firstlings are consumed, not merely a tenth of them (15:19–20).

so that you may learn to revere the Lord Reverence will be fostered in the chosen city by contact with the priests, who teach piety and law. 24. because the Lord . . . has blessed you Because this was the blessing of abundant crops, the tithe would be too ample for transport over a long distance.

25. money Hebrew: kesef; literally, “silver.” Money consisted of precious metal, most often silver. The metal was shaped into rings, bracelets, and ingots, the value of which was established by their weight at the time of each transaction.

wrap up the money Keep it intact in a money bag, spending none of it along the way.

26. wine, or other intoxicant This phrase refers either to different types of grape wine, such as new and old or mixed and unmixed, or to grape wine and another intoxicant, such as date wine, pomegranate wine, or beer.

anything you may desire To eat as part of the feast.

23. How will consuming the tithe in Jerusalem teach us to revere God? Seeing the Temple in all its glory and the priests at their service will inspire a sense of reverence [Rashbam]. Another commentator suggests that we attain a sense of reverence not through an intellectual process but by experiencing God’s grace in our lives.

24. because the place . . . is far from you Makkom [place] is also one of the names of God—the site of all reality. Thus the verse can mean, “should the distance seem too great for you because God is far from your heart.” of the Lord your God, and rejoice with your household.

27 But do not neglect the Levite in your community, for he has no hereditary portion as you have. 28 Every third year you shall bring out the full tithe of your yield of that year, but leave it within your settlements. 29 Then the Levite, who has no hereditary portion as you have, and the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow in your settlements shall come and eat their fill, so that the Lord your God may bless you in all the enterprises you undertake.

15 Every seventh year you shall practice re-rejoice with your household A farmer and his household could not possibly consume the entire tithe during the required 9 days of pilgrimage to the sanctuary each year (16:1–17). Theoretically, a household producing at subsistence level would require 35.4 days to consume 10 percent (a tithe) of its produce. Even if the farmers invited the Levites and the poor to the festival meals, as required, and doubled their normal consumption, they still could not dispose of all the food—unless there were as many Levites and poor as there were members of the farmers’ households, which is unlikely. Perhaps whatever was left over had to be given away to the poor or was destroyed.

27. Levite in your community Those residing in the various towns and cities.

The Triennial Poor Tithe (vv. 28–29)

In the third and sixth years of each seven-year cycle (see 15:1), the farmers shall not eat the tithe at the sanctuary but must deposit it in their hometowns to feed the Levites and the poor. Presumably, the produce collected in each of these two years was expected to suffice for three or four years until the next collection. It seems unlikely that the poor were to be fed only two years out of seven.

CHAPTER 15

1. Most of this chapter is concerned with ensuring that there not emerge in Israel a permanent underclass—persons unable to lift themselves out of poverty. Such a condition would be unfair to human beings, fashioned in God’s image, and dangerous to society as a breeding ground for lawlessness and irresponsibility. The first step in the direction of preventing that is the remission of debts in the seventh year.
mission of debts. 2 This shall be the nature of the remission: every creditor shall remit the due that he claims from his fellow; he shall not dun his fellow or kinsman, for the remission proclaimed is of the Lord. 3 You may dun the foreigner; but you must remit whatever is due you from your kinsmen.

4 There shall be no needy among you—since the Lord your God will bless you in the land that the Lord your God is giving you as a hereditary portion—if only you heed the Lord your God and take care to keep all this Instruction that I enjoin upon you this day. 5 For the Lord your God will bless you as He has promised you: you will extend loans to many nations, but require none yourself; you will dominate many nations, but they will not dominate you.

6 If, however, there is a needy person among Re superscript the {paragraph}

Remission of Debts (vv. 1–6)
The Torah is here concerned with the type of debt incurred by the poor and insolvent: a farmer in dire need of funds because of crop failure and a city dweller destitute as a result of unemployment. Loans to such individuals were regarded as acts of philanthropy rather than commercial ventures, and the forgiving of such loans was an extension of the generosity. The remission of debts and other provisions for the relief of debtors are part of the Torah’s program for preserving a balanced distribution of resources across society (see Exod. 22:24–26; Lev. 25:36–37; Deut. 23:20–21, 24:6,10–13,17).

1. Every seventh year According to talmudic law, debts were canceled at sunset on the last day of the seventh year.

2. every creditor Because the remission is for the benefit of the poor, it probably does not cover all types of debts. (According to later Jewish law, unpaid wages, bills owed to shopkeepers for merchandise, and certain types of secured loans are not canceled.)

his fellow or his kinsman That is, “his fellow, who is his kinsman.” Both terms refer to one person.

3. you will extend loans If the Israelites will obey God’s laws, not only will they have no poor who need loans but they will be so prosperous that other nations will turn to them for loans.

4. your God will bless you With prosperity.

5. as He has promised you The promises are linked to the Israelites’ obedience.

6. you will dominate Economically.

Lend to the Poor! (vv. 7–11)
Even those who normally would be willing to lend to the poor might hesitate as the year of remission approaches, because it is likely that they would lose what they had loaned. Moses urges the people to disregard such calculations. Such appeals for you, one of your kinsmen in any of your settlements in the land that the Lord your God is giving you, do not harden your heart and shut your hand against your needy kinsman. Rather, you must open your hand and lend him sufficient for whatever he needs. Beware lest you harbor the base thought, “The seventh year, the year of remission, is approaching,” so that you are mean to your needy kinsman and give him nothing. He will cry out to the Lord against you, and you will incur guilt. Give to him readily and have no regrets when you do so, for in return the Lord your God will bless you in all your efforts and in all your undertakings. For there will never cease to be needy ones in your land, which is why I command you: open your hand to the poor and needy kinsman in your land.

7–10. An obligation to generously support a kinsman who has fallen on hard times without calculating whether the help will be repaid. This is not so much a loan as an investment in a decent, compassionate, stable society.

7. If... there is a needy person among you If the ideal promised in verse 4 is not achieved.

9. you will incur guilt Guilt builds up until it leads to punishment, just as merit builds up and leads to reward.

10. God will bless you The closer the year of remission, the more likely it is that the loan will end up as a gift. But any loss incurred will be more than made up by God.

11. there will never cease to be needy ones The realism of this verse contrasts with the ideal described in verse 4.

remission. By this means, Hillel ensured that the law would not undermine its own purpose.

10. The Midrash imagines God saying, “You sustain My dependents [the poor, the widow, and the orphan] and I will sustain your dependents” (Tanh. 18).

11. For there will never cease to be needy ones in your land Therefore, you must build the solution to poverty into the social structure, and not rely on people’s generosity. A poor person need never be embarrassed to accept help, because giving tz’dakah is an obligation, not charity resulting from kindheartedness. At the same time, the Sages also tell us: “Better to flay carcasses in the marketplace than to depend on public assistance because you feel the available work is beneath your dignity” (BT Pes. 113a).

HALAKHAIH L’MA-ASEH
15:7–11. open your hand These verses undergird Jewish poverty laws requiring us to feed, clothe, and house poor non-Jews as well as Jews. See also Exod. 12:49; Lev. 19:9–10, 25:25, 35; Deut. 24:10–22.
If a fellow Hebrew, man or woman, is sold to you, he shall serve you six years, and in the seventh year you shall set him free. When you set him free, do not let him go empty-handed: furnish him out of the flock, threshing floor, and vat, with which the Lord your God has blessed you. Bear in mind that you were slaves in the land of Egypt and the Lord your God redeemed you; therefore I enjoin this commandment upon you today.

But should he say to you, “I do not want to leave you”—for he loves you and your household and is happy with you—you shall take an awl and put it through his ear into the door,

Manumission of Indentured Servants (vv. 12–18)

This is one of several laws in the Torah that deal with servitude, an accepted fact of life in ancient Israel as it was everywhere else in the ancient world. Biblical law and ethical teachings aimed at securing humane treatment for servants (see Exod. 21:2–6; Lev. 25:39–55).

12. fellow Hebrew That is, “Hebrew kinsman” (literally, “brother”). The law limits the amount of time during which one Israelite may control another. Only foreigners may be owned in perpetuity and passed on to heirs (Lev. 25:39–55). The phrase reminds one of the special, brotherly obligations toward fellow Israelites.

13. sold to you The law refers to the sale of a son or a daughter by an indigent father or the sale of a thief by the court. The aim in either case would be to satisfy a debt or raise the funds to do so. It could also refer to the self-sale of a destitute person for self-support or support of family.

14. six years The standard term of indenture (see also v. 18; Exod. 21:2). Here Deuteronomy goes beyond Exod. 21:2, in requiring that newly freed servants be given capital and supplies for living as they resume independent life. The aim is to prevent them from starting off penniless and possibly returning to the same wretched condition that originally led to servitude.

15. flock, threshing floor, and vat Some sheep or goats (or their products, such as milk or wool), some grain, and some wine.

16. The servant might consider that the security gained through subservience is preferable to the risks of independence. The fact that the law thinks it possible that the servant might love the master and desire servitude implies that the treatment of indentured servants was expected to be quite benign.

17. you shall take an awl See Exod. 21:2–6. The ceremony for making the servant’s status permanent consists of driving the point of an awl through his ear into the door of the master’s

HALAKH AH L’MA-ASEH

15:13–14. do not let him go empty-handed On the basis of these verses, some Jewish authorities require employers to pay severance to employees hired on more than a temporary basis. Others see it as a moral duty exclusively (Seifer Ha-Hinnukh 481–482).
and he shall become your slave in perpetuity. Do the same with your female slave. 18When you do set him free, do not feel aggrieved; for in the six years he has given you double the service of a hired man. Moreover, the Lord your God will bless you in all you do.

19You shall consecrate to the Lord your God all male firstlings that are born in your herd and in your flock: you must not work your firstling ox or shear your firstling sheep. 20You and your household shall eat it annually before the Lord your God in the place that the Lord will choose. 21But if it has a defect, lameness or blindness, any serious defect, you shall not sacrifice it to the Lord your God. 22Eat it in your settlements, the impure among you no less than the pure, just like the gazelle and the deer.

house. The significance of this action is unclear. It might symbolize the servant’s obligation to heed the master’s orders; the pierced ear might have held an earring that served as a slave mark; driving the awl into the door might signify the servant’s becoming permanently attached to the master’s house.

in perpetuity According to Jewish law, for the rest of the master’s life, unless a jubilee year (as prescribed in Lev. 25) comes first. Even a servant who chooses to remain with the master is not passed on to the master’s heirs and does not remain beyond the jubilee.

18. do not feel aggrieved Deuteronomy is interested in the Israelite’s feelings, not just in compliance with the law. Having grown accustomed to a servant’s usefulness, a master might regard the Torah’s demand to free the servant as an unreasonable hardship. The text reminds masters that they have profited handsomely from their servants and have no reason to feel deprived.

double the service of a hired man The point may be that the wages of a hired man would have been twice what the servant cost in room and board and perhaps a defaulted loan. Furthermore, a hired man would have worked only during the day, whereas the servant was available day and night.

God will bless you Any loss incurred will be more than made up by God.

THE SACRIFICE OF FIRSTBORN CATTLE

(vv. 19–23)
The first issue of all living things is considered holy, reserved for the Lord. Only after these are given to God, thereby acknowledging Him as the source and owner of all life, are the remainder of the crop and subsequent offspring of animals desacralized and freed for human use. Such practices were common in the ancient world.

19. consecrate Treat them as holy by not using them for any secular purpose and by eating them in a sacrificial meal.

20. eat it annually before the Lord As a shelamim sacrifice. According to 12:17–18, Levites also would be invited to take part in the meal (see Lev. 3).

annually Firstborn cattle must be sacrificed within a year of their birth, presumably on one of the pilgrimage festivals.

21. if it has a defect Offering a defective animal to God shows contempt. One would never present such an animal to a human ruler. Hence, in 17:1, sacrificing flawed animals is regarded as an abomination. It is among the offenses that profane God’s name in Lev. 22:2,17–25,32.

22. A disqualified firstling may be eaten as food and need not be replaced sacrificially by another animal, redeemed for money, or destroyed, as would be the case with the firstling of an impure animal.
Only you must not partake of its blood; you shall pour it out on the ground like water.

Observe the month of Abib and offer a passover sacrifice to the LORD your God, for it was in the month of Abib, at night, that the LORD your God freed you from Egypt. You shall slaughter the passover sacrifice for the LORD your God, from the flock and the herd, in the Israelites on the eve of the Exodus immediately before the last of the Ten Plagues. The name is derived from the verb pašah, which describes the manner in which God spared the firstborn in the houses of the Israelites after the blood of the sacrifice was smeared on their doorposts and lintels (Exod. 12:13, 23, 27). In the Vulgate, the verb appears as “[the LORD] passed over, and the sacrifice is called “passover.” The Hebrew verb, however, does not mean “to pass over.” Most of the ancient translations and commentaries render the verb as the LORD “spared,” “had compassion,” or “protected.” The sacrifice, accordingly, is called the “protective sacrifice,” referring to the protection of the Israelites during the final plague. This very likely is the correct translation.

at night Although the Israelites themselves started to leave Egypt “on the morrow of the passover offering” (Num. 33:3), God’s action—the slaying of Egypt’s firstborn at night—is viewed as the essence of the event.

from the flock and the herd According to Exod. 12:3–5 and 21, the pašah offering was brought only from the flock and limited to sheep and goats. Deuteronomy clearly indicates that herd animals, large bovines, may be used as well. Perhaps this reflects a different economy, or a time when the sacrifice would be made at a central sanctuary where many households could share a larger animal.

CHAPTER 16

The summary of the festivals in other books of the Torah [Exod. 23:14–17, Lev. 23; Num. 28–29] tell us how to celebrate the holidays. In contrast, Deuteronomy tells us why: “for it was in the month of Abib, at night, that the LORD your God freed you from Egypt” [v. 1], “for you departed . . . hurriedly” [v. 3], “After the ingathering” [v. 13]. One might think that the reason for observance should precede the commandment to observe, so that people would know why they were celebrating. It seems to be more effective pedagogy, though, especially for children, to start with the deed and only later explain that this is why we eat matzah on Pesah and live in booths on Sukkot.
place where the Lord will choose to establish His name. 3You shall not eat anything leavened with it; for seven days thereafter you shall eat unleavened bread, bread of distress—for you departed from the land of Egypt hurriedly—so that you may remember the day of your departure from the land of Egypt as long as you live.

4For seven days no leaven shall be found with you in all your territory, and none of the flesh of what you slaughter on the evening of the first day shall be left until morning.

5You are not permitted to slaughter the passover sacrifice in any of the settlements that the Lord your God is giving you; 6but at the place where the Lord your God will choose to establish His name, there alone shall you slaughter the passover sacrifice, in the evening, at sundown, the time of day when you departed from

3. anything leavened Food prepared from dough to which a leavening agent was added to make it rise. In postbiblical halakhah, this means any leavened product of wheat, barley, spelt, rye, or oats. Most Ashkenazim also include rice, millet, corn, and legumes in this prohibition.

unleavened bread Matzah, bread made without yeast and not allowed to rise. It can be made quickly and was commonly prepared for unexpected guests. It is similar to the flat unleavened bread that Bedouins still bake on embers.

bread of distress The matzah is “bread of affliction” or “bread of poverty,” eaten by prisoners or by the poor. It is unpretentious, primitive fare that one would not normally eat. There is no evidence that the Israelites ate matzah when they were slaves. It commemorates the Exodus, not the enslavement.

remember the day of your departure By re-enacting the first pesah sacrifice and eating unleavened bread.

4. leaven Hebrew: s’or. Here refers to leavening agents, such as sourdough or yeast. It differs from “anything leavened” (hametz; v. 3), which refers to foodstuffs that have been leavened by leavening agents.

none of the flesh...shall be left until morning The sacrifice is offered at sunset (v. 6). It must be eaten through the night and finished by morning, thereby emulating procedures with the original pesah sacrifice in Egypt (see Exod. 12:8).

5. Once sacrificial worship is centralized in the chosen place, the pesah must be offered there. This is a characteristic requirement of Deuteronomy.

6. the time of day when you departed from Egypt The original pesah sacrifice, which was indispensable in ensuring the safety of the Israeletes during the 10th plague, is here seen as the onset of the Exodus.

7. cook Literally, “boil,” reflecting the practice of a populace settled in the promised land. (Compare this with Exod. 12:9, which requires roasting, reflecting pastoral nomadic practice.)

in the morning you may start on your journey back home The entire seven days need not be spent at the chosen place, because it is necessary to return home in time to begin the harvest. Either Deuteronomy does not consider travel to be forbidden on festival days or does not regard the second part of the day, following the Pesah sacrifice and meal, as sacred. Some traditional commentators hold that "in the morning" refers to the morning of the second day of the festival.

8. six days That is, for the first six of the seven days on which it must be eaten (v. 3). According to postbiblical Jewish law, eating unleavened bread is obligatory only on the first day and not on the remaining days, though nothing leavened may be eaten.

solemn gathering Because this gathering occurs after the people have returned home, it must take place in their hometowns. This clearly indicates that Deuteronomy intends to allow nonsacrificial religious gatherings to take place throughout the country. Only sacrifice is restricted to the chosen place.

do no work Unlike on Shabbat, preparation of food is allowed (Exod. 12:16).

The Feast of Weeks (vvs. 9–12)
The name of the festival is derived from the fact that it is observed exactly seven weeks after the onset of the harvest. The passage of seven weeks is an essential aspect of the festival. Until seven weeks have passed, it is not known whether the harvest will be successfully completed and plentiful enough to sustain life and not be damaged by late rain or pests.

9. count off That is, calculate.

seven weeks The time needed to complete the harvest.

when the sickle is first put to the standing grain That is, when the grain harvest begins, normally in April. The text gives no exact date, probably because the harvest cannot begin everywhere on the same date owing to regional variations in the climate. Thus farmers from diverse places probably would have observed the feast at different times.

10. Observe the Feast of Weeks A time of solemn gathering on which no work is permitted and loaves made of new grain are offered as first fruits of the grain harvest (see Lev. 23:16–21). Presumably, tithes, firstlings, freewill, and obligatory offerings were also brought, as on other festivals.

freewill contribution Offering what you can afford as a result of the harvest (cf. v. 17, 12:15, 15:14). The contribution might be of produce, animals, or money.

7. in the morning you may start back on your journey home According to the Tosaftot, the prohibition of traveling on festivals is not found in the Torah; it is a Rabbinic enactment (BT Hag. 17b, s.v. dikhtiv).

9–11. Shavuot (the Feast of Weeks) is presented in the Torah as a celebration of the early harvest, marked by bringing the first fruits to the Temple. In Second Temple times, it was calculated that the 50th day after the Exodus—the date of Shavuot—was the day on which the Torah was given at Mount Sinai. Shavuot became z’man matan Torateinu (the time of the giving of our Torah). Like Pesah and Sukkot, Shavuot thus acquired a historical dimension along with its agricultural significance.
the fatherless, and the widow in your midst, at the place where the Lord your God will choose to establish His name. 12 Bear in mind that you were slaves in Egypt, and take care to obey these laws.

13 After the ingathering from your threshing floor and your vat, you shall hold the Feast of Booths for seven days. 14 You shall rejoice in your festival, with your son and daughter, your male and female slave, the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow in your communities. 15 You shall hold a festival for the Lord your God seven days, in the place that the Lord will choose; for the Lord your God will bless all your crops and all your undertakings, and you shall have nothing but joy.

16 Three times a year—on the Feast of Unleavened Bread, on the Feast of Weeks, and on the Feast of Booths—all your males shall appear before the Lord your God in the place that He will choose. They shall not appear before the Lord empty-handed, 17 but each with his own gift, according to the blessing that the Lord your God has bestowed upon you.

12. The memory of slavery is invoked to motivate extending this prescription to the servants and the poor mentioned in verse 11.

The Feast of Booths (vv. 13–15)
The third feast, at the end of the summer, celebrates the gathering of grain and new wine into storage for the coming year, the goal of all the preceding agricultural activities. This is the most exuberant of the festivals and has come to be called “the time of our rejoicing” (z’am man simhateinu).

13. After the ingathering from your threshing floor and from the vat That is, after the processed grain and the unfermented grape juice are put in containers and stored away in advance of the autumn rains.

Feast of Booths According to Lev. 23:42, the name is derived from the practice of dwelling in booths, or bowers, during the seven-day festival.

14. The harvest season and festivals were proverbial times for celebration.

15. all your crops . . . all your undertakings . . . nothing but joy The soaring extent of the blessing explains why the celebrating is to last a full seven days.

16. Feast of Unleavened Bread Here, the term must refer to the night of the pe'ah sacrifice (and not the following seven days), because that is the only time (according to v. 7) when worshipers are required to be at the chosen place.

males Only the adult males are obligated to appear, probably because pregnant and nursing women and young children could not reasonably be required to make long trips. Nevertheless, women and children frequently did take part, as is clear from verses 11 and 14.

appear before the Lord To pay Him homage at His sanctuary. This resembles the practice of homage to human sovereigns as reflected in treaties.

17. each with his own gift Literally, “each according to his means” (as in v. 10).
(Recite on the 3rd Shabbat after the 9th of Av, coinciding with the reading of R’eih. On the Seven Haftarot of Consolation, see p. 1032.)

Bold promises of physical and spiritual transformation introduce this passage from Isaiah. They are presented in unilateral terms. Nothing is demanded of the people. God promises a spectacular rebuilding of Zion, a thorough restoration to raise it out of a depressing situation (54:11–12). And Zion’s children will be transformed into disciples of the Lord, who will protect them (vv. 13–17).

The second part of the haftarah (55:1–5) be-speaks a more bilateral relationship. Repeatedly God calls on the nation to turn to Him: “Give heed to Me”; “Incline your ear and come to Me.” Spiritual transformation, a condition for renewal, promises true sustenance: “Hearken, and you shall be revived” (v. 3). Then Israel will lead other nations (vv. 4–5).

A rhetoric of assurance features the Hebrew particle hinnei or hen (behold, surely). In the first part it emphasizes freedom from fear (54:15). Although the translation does not render it directly, this particle also punctuates the promise of Zion’s riches and highlights Israel’s new role among the nations (54:11,16; 55:4,5). In the Hebrew text, it both evokes the immediacy of God’s presence and creates an insistent, decisive tone.

Modulation from Israel’s disconsolate condition to one of confidence in God’s creative reality is underscored by the Hebrew particle lo (no, not). It also highlights the nation’s shift from a lack of life’s essentials to bounty, and from discomfort among other nations to being their commander (54:14,17; 55:2,5).

54:11 Unhappy, storm-tossed one, uncom-forted!
I will lay carbuncles as your building stones
And make your foundations of sapphires.
12 I will make your battlements of rubies,
Your gates of precious stones,
The whole encircling wall of gems.
13 And all your children shall be disciples of the LORD,
And great shall be the happiness of your children;

your children Hebrew: banayikh, spelled בנויה. In a well-known midrash, the second instance of this word in v. 13 is reread as bonayikh (your builders); it became the basis for teaching that knowledgeable children are the culture builders of the next generation (BT Ber. 64a). The
You shall be established through righteousness.
You shall be safe from oppression,
And shall have no fear;
From ruin, and it shall not come near you.
Surely no harm can be done
Without My consent:
Whoever would harm you Shall fall because of you.
It is I who created the smith
To fan the charcoal fire
And produce the tools for his work;
So it is I who create
The instruments of havoc.
No weapon formed against you Shall succeed,
And every tongue that contends with you at law
You shall defeat.
Such is the lot of the servants of the LORD,
Such their triumph through Me
—declares the LORD.

Ho, all who are thirsty,
Come for water,
Even if you have no money;
Come, buy food and eat:
Buy food without money,
Wine and milk without cost.
Why do you spend money for what is not bread,
Your earnings for what does not satisfy?
Give heed to Me,
And you shall eat choice food
And enjoy the richest viands.

3 Incline your ear and come to Me;
Hearken, and you shall be revived.
And I will make with you an everlasting covenant,
The enduring loyalty promised to David.

4 As I made him a leader of peoples,
A prince and commander of peoples,
So you shall summon a nation you did not know,
And a nation that did not know you Shall come running to you—
For the sake of the Lord your God,
The Holy One of Israel who has glorified you.

3. enduring loyalty promised to David The royal covenant given to David (2 Sam. 7:15) is now transferred to the entire people. Here besed (enduring loyalty) means faithfulness to that covenant.

4. leader Hebrew: ed, literally, “witness.” The figure “leader of peoples” combines images of Israel’s mission as a “light of nations” and as “witnesses” to God’s power (see 42:7, 43:10).