Folding Typewriter, Yiddish, Corona Typewriter Company, United States, c. 1918.

The keys are Yiddish, not Hebrew, as can be determined by the presence of some letters wih vowels underneath them and the labeling of the back space key in Yiddish. The typewriter was used by the father of Eli Bensky while he was secretary for his synagogue in New Jersey in the 1920's. This image has been preserved and widely disseminated as artwork by photographer Andrew Bernstein. Donated by Eli Bensky (MISC0474).

David Golinkin

מאת:

DAVID GOLINKIN <dgolinkin@aol.com>

נשלח:

יום שלישי 29 דצמבר 2020 12:52

אל:

David Golinkin

נושא:

Fwd: The four children

From: Guershon < sibrapoa@gmail.com > Date: 29 December 2020 at 5:02:47 GMT+2

To: dgolinkin@aol.com
Subject: The four children

Dear Mori ve Rabbi David Golinkin

This picture is not historical but one day it will be. Leitraot!

Guershon Kwasniewski

